General Statement

HISTORY

CORNELL UNIVERSITY MEDICAL COLLEGE was established by the Board of Trustees of Cornell University on April 14, 1898, when they elected Dr. William M. Polk Director of the College and Dean of the Medical Faculty and appointed six professors. The Medical College was made possible by the munificence of Colonel Oliver H. Payne, who provided the funds for the erection of the original building, located at 28th Street and First Avenue, and who pledged his support to the new institution. For several years he provided funds for the annual support of the college and later placed the institution on a secure foundation by making generous provision for its permanent endowment by a gift of over four million dollars.

In October, 1898, instruction began in temporary quarters. As the Medical College admitted a number of students to advanced standing, Cornell University granted the degree of Doctor of Medicine for the first time in 1899.

The Cornell University Medical College from its foundation has undertaken to carry out two allied activities: the development of physicians of the best type and the extension of medical knowledge by means of research. The Medical Faculty has held from the beginning of its existence the attitude that these two functions are necessary as constituting a true university school. It is committed not only to conduct teaching of high order but also to study disease and the sciences underlying medicine with the purpose of adding to medical knowledge.

THE NEW YORK HOSPITAL-CORNELL MEDICAL COLLEGE ASSOCIATION

The Cornell University Medical College and the New York Hospital have been cooperating for a long time in an arrangement for medical teaching. In September, 1932, however, the two institutions took up occupancy in the same plant.

The New York Hospital was founded by Royal Charter on June 13, 1771, in the reign of King George III, and has stood throughout the life of the nation as one of the foremost hospitals in the United States, as an institution rendering service to the sick and injured, and as a center of medical education. For a number of years the Hospital and the Medical College had been partially affiliated. In June, 1927, an agreement was entered into between Cornell University and the New York Hospital by which the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical College Association was formed for the purpose of bringing together their facilities and cooperating in the care of patients, in medical education, and in medical research. In order to harmonize the interests of the Hospital and of the Medical College, the Joint Administrative Board was formed, consisting of three representatives of each institution and a seventh member elected by the Hospital and by the University.

Additional endowment was secured by each institution. A group of buildings was erected along the East River between 68th and 71st Streets, adjoining the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. The new plant affords separate buildings for each of the various laboratory departments and includes approximately 1,182 hospital beds. Provision is made for medicine, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics, and psychiatry in five distinct clinical units.

The Faculty of the Medical College and the professional staff of the Hospital are organized so as to form one body established on a university basis.

The new plant affords very favorable conditions for the conduct of medical education, for the pursuit of medical research, and for the care of patients in all phases of medical practice.

FACILITIES FOR INSTRUCTION

From the point of view of medical instruction, the facilities provided by the plant of the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical College Association are in many respects unexcelled. The plant consists of eleven buildings, joined either directly or by underground passages. These provide ample accommodations for the care of hospital patients, for the teaching of the clinical branches, and for the various activities connected with the work of the preclinical departments of the medical college.

CORNELL MEDICAL COLLEGE. Instruction in the medical sciences is conducted in a group of buildings extending along York Avenue from 68th to 70th Streets, centering in a court at the end of 69th Street where the entrance to the Medical College is located. This group comprises four units facing on York Avenue, each of which is five stories high. The extreme northern and southern buildings connect with the central group by means of two-story structures. In this series of buildings the one to the north (unit A) is devoted entirely to the department of anatomy; the one next to this on the south (unit B) to bacteriology and immunology; the third (unit D) to physiology; the fourth (unit E) to biochemistry and pharmacology. A seven-story building (unit C) joins the buildings B and D in the center, and in this are the offices of the Medical College, the library, and the department of pathology. This central building of the College is joined on all floors with the central hospital building. Certain of the laboratories of the department of public health and preventive medicine are located in the two-story building which adjoins the bacteriology unit to the north, but the major part of this department is comprised in the Kips Bay-Yorkville Health Center building of the City of New York, located half a block west from the Medical College on 69th Street.

In the main buildings of the Medical College, student laboratories and lecture rooms are provided on the second and third floors, and extensive facilities for research by staff and students are available on other floors. Locker rooms are provided for the use of students. A cafeteria under the direction of the chief dietitian of the New York Hospital is maintained for students and Faculty.

NEW YORK HOSPITAL. Clinical instruction is given in the five separate clinics forming the New York Hospital. The medical and surgical clinics occupy the central hospital building, while the women's clinic, the pediatric clinic, and the psychiatric clinic extend from north to south, overlooking the East River. Each clinic contains, besides provision for bed patients, its own out-patient department, lecture rooms, and laboratories for routine study and for clinical research. Special provision has also been made for the laboratory work of students. The medical clinic occupies the second to fourth floors of the central hospital building, with six pavilions for bed patients, three floors for its out-patient department, and extensive laboratories for chemical, physiological, and biological research. The surgical clinic occupies the pavilions from the fifth to the ninth floor, with out-patient and other facilities for the various surgical specialists. The operating rooms are on the tenth and eleventh floors. Above are six floors containing one hundred rooms for private patients, while the living quarters for the resident staff are on the six floors at the top of the building. The entire hospital has a capacity of approximately 1,182 beds.

The head of each clinic, responsible for the care of patients and the conduct of professional services of the hospital, is also professor in charge of the corresponding department of the Medical College. Each clinical department is staffed in part by teachers and clinicians, including the professor in charge, who devote their entire time to the service of the College and Hospital, while other members of these departments devote part of their time to private practice.

OTHER HOSPITALS FOR CLINICAL INSTRUCTION

Although the clinical teaching is conducted largely in the New York Hospital, advantage is also taken of special facilities afforded by other hospitals. In some of these hospitals the staff appointments are controlled by the Medical College, while in others the teaching privileges have been granted to the members of the staffs who are also members of the Medical College Faculty.

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL. Bellevue is the central hospital of the New York City Department of Hospitals. It contains 3,325 beds and is devoted to the treatment of acute diseases. It is organized in four divisions, one of which has been placed at the disposal of the Faculty of Cornell University Medical College for medical instruction. The services conducted by the College include a medical service and a surgical service, each of 90 beds, a urological service and a neurological service of approximately 60 beds. The staffs of these services are nominated by the College from among the members of its Faculty and teaching staff, and the Medical College is responsible for the professional conduct of these services.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL. Through the generosity of the late Dr. James Douglas, who provided the hospital with an endowment for the study and treatment of cancer and allied diseases, the Memorial Hospital became affiliated in 1914 with Cornell University Medical College. The agreement between the Memorial Hospital and the College requires that the professional staff be named by the Council of the Medical College subject to the approval of the board of managers of the hospital. The facilities of the hospital, which are of exceptional value in the field of cancer, are available for study in this field by the members of the hospital staff, and unusual opportunities are afforded for instruction in the pathology, diagnosis, and treatment of neoplastic diseases.

MANHATTAN STATE HOSPITAL (WARD'S ISLAND). This hospital for the care and treatment of mental diseases accommodates over 5,000 patients. Through the courtesy of the superintendent, the department of psychiatry is enabled to utilize this clinical material for bedside study of patients and for the instruction of students.

WILLARD PARKER HOSPITAL. Instruction in infectious diseases is conducted at the Willard Parker Hospital, where staff positions are held by members of the Faculty and teaching staff who have the privilege of conducting medical instruction.

LINCOLN HOSPITAL. This unit of the New York City Department of Hospitals has a bed capacity of 469 and facilities for handling cases in all divisions of clinical work. Through cooperative arrangements made possible by members of our teaching staff holding assignments on the hospital staff, a certain part of the teaching of medicine in the second year course is carried out on the wards of Lincoln Hospital. The abundance of clinical material and the type of disease met with in this institution afford a valuable adjunct to the work in this part of the medical course.

THE RUSSELL SAGE INSTITUTE OF PATHOLOGY

The Institute has been associated with Cornell University Medical College since 1913. At first it was affiliated with the Second Medical (Cornell) Division of Bellevue Hospital, but since 1932 it has been in the New York Hospital. The Institute has supported work in metabolism which has been conducted by the members of the departments of Medicine and Physiology. The respiration calorimeter which was operated for a number of years by Dr. DuBois at Bellevue Hospital has been transferred by the directors of the Institute to the New York Hospital and sufficient funds have been provided for carrying on the important metabolic studies by members of the staff. The medical director of the Institute is Dr. David P. Barr, Professor of Medicine.

THE LOOMIS LABORATORY

Founded in 1886 and located at 414 East 26th Street this institution served the purpose of undergraduate instruction in the Medical College and provided facilities for original research in the various departments of laboratory investigation. The present Medical College building contains space dedicated to the original Loomis Laboratory and its established objectives.

THE LIBRARY

The reading room of the library is situated on the second floor of the central group of laboratory buildings, directly over the entrance of the Medical College. The current journals are kept in racks around three sides of the room. The book stacks are directly behind and open to the reading room, extending down to the subbasement with six floors of stacks and accommodations for about 100,000 volumes. There are also a library seminar room and several rooms for the library staff.

The library contains at present over 41,000 volumes, largely made up of complete sets of important journals in the fields of clinical medicine and the medical sciences, in English, German, and French. There are also well-selected collections of monographs, textbooks, and reprints.

Several of the departments of the Medical College have libraries containing journals, monographs, and textbooks pertaining especially to the subject matter of the departments. These serve to supplement in a useful way the scope of the main library.

The library is under the direction of a committee of the Faculty and in charge of a trained librarian who gives instruction to students on the proper methods of using the library and of searching medical literature.

A special fund, maintained in memory of Alfred Moritz Michaelis, M.D. 1925, Cornell, who died the year after his graduation, is used for the purchase of books of cultural and historic values in medicine.

In addition to the college library, students may obtain certain privileges at the library of the New York Academy of Medicine, Fifth Avenue and 103rd Street, the second largest medical library in the United States.

Requirements for Admission and Graduation

THE FACULTY of Cornell University Medical College, in defining the qualifications for admission to the medical profession, attaches particular importance to the liberal culture and general education implied by the acquisition of a college degree. Because of the acceleration of college training under the Army and Navy programs during the war, the degree requirement was suspended. A return to the college degree as a prerequisite for acceptance has now been adopted by Faculty and Trustee action, and only the following candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine will be admitted to Cornell Medical College.

1. Graduates of approved colleges or scientific schools; or
2. Seniors in good standing in Cornell University or in any other approved college or scientific school whose faculty will permit them to substitute the first year of the professional course for the fourth year in arts and sciences, and who will confer upon them the Bachelor's degree upon the satisfactory completion of the first year of the course in the Cornell University Medical College. Students from institutions other than Cornell University seeking admission under this clause must have a statement from the Dean of their college signifying approval of this plan for fulfilling the requirements for the degree. Any student failing to receive his degree under this arrangement will not be admitted to the second year of the medical course.

3. Persons who, while not possessing a Bachelor's degree, give evidence by examination that they have acquired an equivalent education and a training sufficient to enable them to profit by the instruction offered in the Medical College. This rule is intended to apply to students of foreign universities.

The basic premedical requirements which all students must fulfill to qualify for admission to the study of medicine in New York State are set forth in the "Regulations of the Commissioner of Education," the pertinent part of which is as follows: "A candidate shall present evidence of having satisfactorily completed two years of study toward a liberal arts degree registered by the Department; or its equivalent as determined by the Commissioner. The required two years of college study shall include at least 6 semester hours each in English, physics, biology or zoology, and general chemistry, and 3 semester hours in organic chemistry."

Although the requirements outlined above form the basis of eligibility for admission to the medical course, they should be considered as representing the irreducible minimum. The list contains a total of twenty-seven credit points which probably represents sufficient time to enable the student to obtain a basic preparation in these different fields. In many colleges, however, additional credits in one or more of these departments are required of the candidate in order to satisfy major requirements for the degree. In making the choice of elective courses, consideration should be given to the principle that thorough training in the sciences is essential. On the other hand, choosing too many elective courses in these departments may not provide the most acceptable preparation for medicine, since it tends to limit the time available for study in other departments offering work of a broad educational value. Students planning to study medicine should bear in mind that bacteriology, immunology, human physiology, and abnormal psychology are properly subjects of the medical and not of the premedical curriculum. In planning premedical work students are advised to elect subjects which will lay a broad foundation for medical study rather than to anticipate courses required as a part of the medical curriculum.

As a general rule the courses given in professional schools of pharmacy, veterinary medicine, optometry, and agriculture are not considered as fulfilling adequately the admission requirements.

APPLICATIONS FOR ADMISSION

All requests for application forms and inquiries regarding dates for submitting applications should be addressed to the Committee on Admissions, 1300 York Avenue, New York City. In making application for admission, the regular form issued for this purpose must be filled out and submitted to the Office of Admissions. Candidates are accepted for only one class in advance. With the large number of students making application in recent years, it has been necessary to assign a definite period for distributing application forms. For the class entering in September, 1952, the release of forms in response to requests will begin on August 1 and continue until January 15, 1952. Applications must be submitted prior to March 1, 1952, to receive consideration by the Committee on Admissions.

A charge of $5.00 is made for submitting an application. This fee should be made payable to Cornell University Medical College in the form of a check or money order and is not returnable.

Applications are passed upon by the Committee on Admissions after all credentials have been filed. As soon as the Committee takes favorable action upon an applicant, a letter of acceptance is immediately forwarded to him, and the accepted applicant is required to make a deposit of $50 within a specified time. This deposit is not returnable but is credited toward the first tuition payment. If the accepted student fails to make this deposit within the stipulated time, he forfeits his place on the class roll.

It is impossible for the Committee on Admissions to hold personal conferences with all candidates for admission as the number is too great, but selected individuals from the group of applicants receive an invitation to appear before members of the Committee.

A student who has previously attended another medical school and has been dropped for poor scholarship or unfavorable conduct is not an acceptable candidate for admission to any class in Cornell Medical College. It is inadvisable, therefore, for one with this background to go through the formality of submitting an application.

ADMISSION TO ADVANCED STANDING

When vacancies occur, students may be admitted to advanced standing.

Application for a place in one of the upper classes should be filed according to the procedure described for admission to the first year class. Accepted applicants are required to make the deposit of $50. Applicants must not only furnish acceptable evidence of having satisfactorily completed in an approved medical school all of the work required of students of the class they wish to enter, but also of having completed the conditions of admission to the first year class at Cornell University Medical College. They must present a certificate of honorable dismissal from the medical school or schools they have attended, and they may be required to take examinations in any of the medical courses taken at another school.

Although a certain number of students are regularly admitted from other institutions to enter the third year class at Cornell University Medical College, rarely have there been acceptances made of students to enter the fourth year on the basis of work at another medical school. Candidates seeking admission to the fourth year are required to come before the clinical departments for a thorough examination before final action is taken on their applications.

Persons who have received the degree of Doctor of Medicine at another institution will not be accepted as candidates for this degree at Cornell University Medical College. Likewise, persons who have finished all or part of the course in dentistry and seek a transfer to medicine are discouraged from making application here since Cornell does not have a department of dentistry and makes no provision for adapting the teaching in this subject to the medical curriculum.

ADVANCEMENT AND EXAMINATION

The entire medical curriculum is arranged in four courses, or academic years, and the student advances in steps of an academic year at a time.

It is necessary that he complete all the subjects listed in a given academic year before taking up the next succeeding group of subjects, and to be readmitted to the Medical College in one of the advanced years (second, third, or fourth) he must be approved for promotion by the Faculty.

Any student who by quality of work or conduct indicates an unfitness to enter the profession of medicine may, at the discretion of the Faculty, be required at any time to withdraw from the Medical College.

At the close of the academic year examinations are given in all subjects except those extending through a part of the year only, in which examinations may be held at the close of the course in the hours allotted thereto. In making up a student's rating in a given course, all work covered in that subject during the year is taken into account and due weight assigned to the effort he puts in his work, his seriousness of purpose, and his scholastic resourcefulness, as well as the results of the final examination.

A final rating is made for each student at the end of the academic year, based on the results of his performance in all courses in the curriculum of that year. These final ratings of students are made on the recommendations of the Committee on Promotion and Graduation; then they are reviewed and formally acted on by the Faculty. The Faculty ratings classify all students of the medical course under one of four groups as follows:

1. Students with no encumbrances in any subject are recorded as "passed." This rating confers eligibility for readmission into the Medical College in the next higher class, unless by reason of conduct the Faculty considers the student unsuited for the medical profession.

2. Students with an unsatisfactory rating in 40 per cent or more of the required hours in a given year are recorded as "not passed." A rating of "not passed" carries ineligibility for readmission into the Medical College.

3. Students with an unsatisfactory rating in less than 40 per cent of the required hours of a given year are recorded as "conditioned." A "conditioned" student has failures in certain required courses, and he may be reexamined in these subjects, but only after pursuing additional work under the direction of the head of the department in which a failure has occurred. Students who fail on reexaminations are ineligible for readmission into the Medical College, unless under special circumstances they are permitted by the Faculty to repeat courses in which their work is deficient.

4. Students with uniformly low grades in most subjects of the course for two years or more are subject to special review by the Faculty, and any student with a record of this kind may be deemed unqualified to enter the medical profession. A rating in this group carries ineligibility for readmission into the Medical College.

It is a well-established policy of the Medical College to make no announcement to students of grades received in any subject of the medical course. At the close of each academic year, however, students are informed of the quarter of the class in which their weighted average score places them in the order of class standing.

A transcript of the Medical College record of a student or graduate will be mailed on his request to accredited hospitals and to educational or other well-recognized institutions as credentials in support of his application for a position or promotion. All transcripts are marked "confidential" and carry the instructions that they are not to be turned over to the candidate. This ruling is for the purpose of avoiding possible loss and fraudulent use of an official document of the Medical College. The Medical College makes no charge for sending out transcripts of record.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

The candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine must have attained the age of twenty-one years and be of good moral character.

They must have completed successfully four full courses of at least eight months each as regular matriculated medical students, the last of which must have been in Cornell University Medical College. They must have satisfactorily completed all the required work of the medical curriculum and must have passed all prescribed examinations. At the end of the fourth year every student who has fulfilled these requirements will be recommended to the President and Trustees of Cornell University for the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

EXAMINATIONS FOR MEDICAL LICENSURE

Graduates of Cornell University Medical College are admitted unconditionally to the examinations for license to practice medicine in all states of the United States.

Students and graduates of Cornell University Medical College are admitted to the examinations of the National Board of Medical Examiners, whose certificate is recognized by the respective authorities of England, Scotland, and Ireland. Although national in scope and organized under the laws of the District of Columbia, the National Board of Medical Examiners is not to be confused as a Federal Government agency. For information write to the National Board of Medical Examiners, 225 South Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Veterans receiving Federal or State educational benefits are required to report to the Veterans Affairs Office, Room A-131, immediately after registering.

APPLICATION FEE

A charge made for reviewing an application $ 5.00

ACCEPTANCE DEPOSIT

Each student admitted is given notice of favorable action on his application and a limited time (usually two weeks) in which to decide if he will enroll in the entering class. His name is not placed on the class list until the acceptance fee is paid. The fee is credited toward the tuition charge and is not returnable if the student fails to enter.

MATRICULATION FEE (payable only once) 10.00

TUITION FEE, for academic year

800.00

This charge is payable at the beginning of the academic year, or in three equal parts, the first of which must be made at registration. For fourth year students in the academic year of 1951-52, the first installment will be due on or before September 14. No refund or rebate will be made in any instance.

STUDENT HOSPITALIZATION INSURANCE, for calendar year

This insurance is carried through the Associated Hospital Service (Blue Cross plan) and may be extended to wives and families of married students at additional cost. This compulsory insurance plan assures a limited period of care to all students during the time they are members in good standing in the Medical College.

BREAKAGE DEPOSIT 10.00

This deposit is required of first and second year students at the beginning of each academic year and will be returned, less the amount charged for breakage, at the end of the second year.

GRADUATION FEE 25.00

This charge is payable two months before graduation.

BOOKS AND INSTRUMENTS, EXCLUSIVE OF MICROSCOPES

The average cost is approximately $110 a year, distributed as follows: first year, $140; second year, $215; third year, $50; fourth year, $30.

MICROSCOPES

Each student is required to provide himself with a microscope of an approved type. The College Book Store handles all makes, and students placing their orders here are given every consideration in the purchase price on the instrument they select.

The Board of Trustees of Cornell University reserves the right to change the schedule of fees of the Medical College when deemed expedient.

RESIDENCE AND LIVING EXPENSES

Accommodations are available for 220 students in temporary quarters pending completion of a student residence. In these facilities the rooms are ample in size, and each provides space to accommodate two students. The location is within one block of the Medical College. The rental rate is $200.00 per academic year per student, payable in three equal parts. Applications may be made for room reservations at the time of acceptance to enter the Medical College.

Cafeterias in the Medical College and the New York Hospital afford facilities for students to obtain well-balanced meals at a conservatively low price in comparison with New York City costs.

For students planning to take up the study of medicine, the problem of financing the course is often a difficult one to solve. Although experience in the undergraduate college may suggest the possibility of supplementing resources by carrying on outside work during the medical course, there is ample evidence to show that a student's entire time and undivided attention are required for study. It is unwise, therefore, to depend upon earning any part of one's expenses during the college year.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE

Members of the first year class and students transferred to advanced standing from other colleges are required to have a physical examination by a member of the Student Health Staff. In addition, each student in the Medical College must report once a year for an X-ray examination of the lungs. All members of the fourth year class are called for a reexamination and a careful check of the findings made with those presented at the time the student entered. Students pay no fee for the yearly X-ray examination, nor for the services of the Student Health Staff, but they are charged for any special X-ray studies. Office hours are held from one to two o'clock daily by the Student Health Staff. Health records are kept and students advised concerning their physical condition and general health. All cases of illness must be reported to the College office. Students may have in attendance physicians of their own choice, but a reasonable amount of cooperation between such physicians and the College's Health Service is expected.

PRIZES

1. FOR GENERAL EFFICIENCY. In commemoration of John Metcalfe Polk, an instructor in this college who was graduated from Cornell University Medical College June 7, 1899, and died on March 29, 1904, prizes will be presented at each commencement to the three students having the highest standing for the four years' work. Only those who have taken the full course of study at Cornell University Medical College are eligible. The first prize is $250, the second $100, and the third $50.
2. FOR EFFICIENCY IN OPHTHALMOLOGY. Two prizes, the first of $50, the second of $25, are offered by Professor Bernard Samuels to the two students of the graduating class who make the best records in ophthalmology.
3. FOR EFFICIENCY IN OTOLARYNGOLOGY. Two prizes, the first of $50, the second of $25, are offered by members of the staff of otolaryngology to the two students of the graduating class who make the best record in this specialty.
4. FOR EFFICIENCY IN OBSTETRICS. Two prizes, the first of $50, the second of $25, have been endowed by an anonymous donor in recognition of the work of Dr. Gustav Seeligman, in obstetrics, to be given to the two students of the graduating class who have made the best records in obstetrics.
5. FOR EFFICIENCY IN GENERAL MEDICINE. The income from $1000 is offered as a prize for general efficiency in the department of medicine, in commemoration of Alfred Moritz Michaelis, who was graduated from Cornell University Medical College on June 11, 1925, and who died during his internship at Mt. Sinai Hospital, April 24, 1926. Presented at each commencement to a member of the graduating class who has pursued the full course at Cornell University Medical College.

6. THE MARY ALDRICH FUND. In memory of William Mecklenburg Polk, M.D., LL.D., first dean of the Medical College, two prizes are offered for proficiency in research to regularly matriculated students of the Cornell University Medical College, the first of $150, and the second of $50. Members of all classes are eligible for these prizes.

The awards are made at the end of each academic year for the best report presented in writing of research work done by students, or for valuable reviews and logical presentations on medical subjects not to be found fully considered in a single text or reference book. If the papers submitted are not considered worthy of special commendation the prizes will be withheld.

Papers are submitted in quadruplicate in a sealed envelope marked "Dean William Mecklenburg Polk Memorial Prize Committee" and must be in the Administrative Office not later than two weeks prior to the end of each academic year.

The committee of awards for this prize consists of two members of the Faculty from laboratory departments, and two from clinical departments.

For 1951 the William Mecklenburg Polk Prize awards for Research were: First Prize: Wilbur Dayton Hagamen, Jr.; Second Prize: Douglas James Roberts, Jr.

7. THE WILLIAM C. THRO MEMORIAL FUND. Established in memory of William C. Thro of the class of 1901 whose all-absorbing interest in and devotion to clinical pathology found expression in the teaching and practice of this subject in his alma mater continuously from 1910 to 1938. This prize award is to be given to the student showing the best record in the course in clinical pathology. The candidate for the prize is to be recommended by the professor of clinical pathology and the award made by the Committee on Prizes and Scholarships.

8. THE HERMAN L. JACOBIOUS PRIZE IN PATHOLOGY. Established in 1945 by a gift from Dr. Lawrence Jacobius and his friends in memory of his son who was killed in action in the Netherlands on September 28, 1944. Dr. Herman L. Jacobius was a member of the class of 1939. The income of the fund is available annually to the student of the third or fourth year class who, in the opinion of the staff of the department of pathology, merits recognition for high scholastic attainments and outstanding performance in the subject of pathology. If in any year no student merits the distinction the award will be withheld.

9. THE BORDEN UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH AWARD. The terms of this grant by The Borden Company Foundation, Inc., provide for awards of $500 during any one calendar year for a period of five years. The award will be made under the following terms and conditions:

1. All persons in the graduating class of the Medical College of Cornell University who, during any year while enrolled in the College, have carried out undergraduate research in the medical field shall be eligible for the Borden Undergraduate Research Award in Medicine. The Award shall be presented at the time of his graduation to that eligible person whose research has been determined by the Medical College to be the most meritorious performed by all similarly eligible persons. Originality and thoroughness of research shall be of primary consideration.

2. In the event that the Dean shall find it inappropriate to make the Award in any one year, the Award may be deferred to a further year. Only one award, however, will be made during any one calendar year.

Papers submitted for this prize should be in triplicate and must be in the Administrative Office not later than two weeks prior to the end of the academic year.

The Borden Prize for Research for the year of 1951 was awarded to Robert Louis Hirsch.

1. THE JOHN METCALFE POLK SCHOLARSHIP. A gift under the will of William Mecklenburg Polk, the first Dean of the Medical College, is awarded annually by the Faculty. The scholarship amounts to about $200 a year.

2. THE THORNE SHAW SCHOLARSHIP FUND. This fund provides three scholarships designated as:

First: A scholarship of approximately $400 available to students after at least two years of study in the Medical College.

Second: Two scholarships of approximately $200 each available to students after at least one year of study in the Medical College.

These scholarships are awarded by the Faculty upon nomination by the Committee on Scholarships and Prizes. They are awarded annually in June and are for one year only. Students receiving the scholarships are notified of the award at the end of the session.

3. MARY F. HALL SCHOLARSHIP. The income, amounting to about $180 annually, from a fund established by bequest of Miss Mary F. 4. THE 1936 JOHN AND KATHERINE MAYER SCHOLARSHIP FUND. A five thousand dollar fund established in 1936, the income from which is annually available to meritorious students who need its aid, and who have completed one or more years of the regular medical course. The award is for one year only, but tenable for a second or third year providing the qualifications of the candidate merit a reaward. If during any year the income from the fund is not used as stated above, then it may be used for such research work, or otherwise, as in the judgment of the Faculty (or Trustees) may be deemed best.

5. THE 1939 JOHN AND KATHERINE MAYER SCHOLARSHIP FUND. A five thousand dollar fund established in 1939, the income from which is annually available to meritorious students who need its aid, and who have completed one or more years of the regular medical course. The award is for one year only, but tenable for a second or third year providing the qualifications of the candidate merit a reaward. If during any year the income from the fund is not used as stated above, then it may be used for such research work, or otherwise, as in the judgment of the Faculty (or Trustees) may be deemed best.

6. THE JEREMIAH S. FERGUSON SCHOLARSHIP. Established in memory of Jeremiah S. Ferguson, who throughout his long connection with the Medical College, of somewhat more than forty years, devoted much effort to helping students with their individual problems and promoting their professional careers. The fund amounts to $5000, the income from which, approximately $200 a year, is awarded annually by the Committee on Scholarships and Prizes to a student or students in the third and fourth year classes in the Medical College who are in need of financial aid and who by conduct and scholarship have proved worthy investments.

7. THE CHARLES RUPERT STOCKARD SCHOLARSHIP. A ten thousand dollar fund was established in 1939 by a friend of the late Charles Rupert Stockard, Professor of Anatomy in the Cornell University Medical College, 1911-1939. The interest of this fund is to be awarded either to one student (approximately $400) or to two students (approximately $200 each) who have shown promise in the work in the department of anatomy and who are desirous of doing advanced work in this department. The scholarships are to be awarded by the Executive Faculty upon nomination by the head of the department of anatomy.

8. THE DR. JOHN A. HEIM SCHOLARSHIPS. Established under the will of John A. Heim of the class of 1905 to provide such number of scholarships in the Medical College as there shall be funds available for that purpose. The awards are to be made to regularly matriculated medical students who are in need of financial assistance, as provided for in the terms of the bequest.

First year students are eligible, provided they meet the standards prescribed.

9. THE DR. CHARLES I. HYDE '10 AND EVA HYDE SCHOLARSHIP FUND. Established in memory of their daughter, Anita Shirley

Hyde. The terms of this endowment provide that the income be available annually to meritorious students who have completed one year of the regular medical course and are in need of assistance. It is further stipulated by the donors that the scholarship be available at once; that they propose to subscribe $75 annually for this purpose until such time as the terms of the bequest become effective; and that if during any year the income from the fund shall not be used for scholarship purposes, the same may be used for research work or otherwise as may be determined by the Board of Trustees after consultation by the President of the University and the Dean of the College.

10. THE DR. JACQUES SAPHIER SCHOLARSHIP FUND. Established in memory of Dr. Jacques Conrad Saphier (Lieutenant, j.g., USNR) of the class of 1940, who was killed in action on August 21, 1942, at Guadalcanal while in the performance of his duty. The income from this fund shall be awarded annually to a meritorious student of the Cornell University Medical College who has completed at least one year of work, who needs its aid, and who, in the opinion of the Faculty merits the recognition for which this scholarship was established.

11. THE ELISE STRANG L'ESPERANCE SCHOLARSHIP. This award is maintained by the personal contributions of Dr. Elise Strang L'Esperance, whose interests in the educational advancements of the Medical College have continued for many years. The value of this scholarship is $1000, and the award is to be given annually to the most outstanding woman medical student in the fourth year class in Cornell University Medical College. The selection of the recipient of this scholarship is to be made by the Dean in consultation with persons suggested under the original donation.

12. THE SAGAN FOUNDATION SCHOLARSHIP. An annual scholarship of $500 to be awarded to a student in Cornell University Medical College, to be selected by the College on the basis of scholarship and need, without reference to race, color, sex, or creed. In the event the Foundation should discontinue the award, at least one year's notice shall be given the Medical College. A special blank issued by the Sagan Foundation should be obtained from the Dean's Office by students making application for this scholarship.

13. RUTH HOLLOHAN SCHOLARSHIP FUND. This fund was established by the terms of the will of Jessie L. Hollohan in memory of Ruth Hollohan. The income is to be used for scholarships for students in the Medical College, with first consideration to be given to entering students of good scholarship who are in need of financial assistance.

BURSARY FOR WOMEN STUDENTS

THE MARIE AND JOHN ZIMMERMAN FUND. A sum from this fund will be available this year to certain women students as a memorial to Marie Zimmerman, Sr. The candidates will be chosen in accordance with the purposes of the donor as set forth in the following terms:

"It is the desire of the Fund that Dr. Connie M. Guion and the Assistant Dean assign the proceeds of the donations to one or more women medical students who are financially in need of assistance and whose academic standing leads them to believe that the recipients of the awards will make a success in their profession."

The objectives and method of assigning these awards will follow the principles accompanying the donations received during the present year.

LOAN FUNDS

1. THE 1923 LOAN FUND. This fund amounts to $350 a year and is available as a loan to students needing financial assistance, preferably to a third year student.

2. ALUMNI ASSOCIATION LOAN FUNDS. The Alumni Association of the Medical College is able to aid a few students in meeting their expenses by the Jessie P. Andresen Memorial Fund and the Class Student Loan Funds. The loans made from these funds will be administered by the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association. The Medical College is consulted in making these awards. Students in the upper classes will be given preference.

3. STUDENT LOAN FUND. A revolving fund contributed through different sources including The Kellogg Foundation and The Charles Hayden Foundation is available to students in all classes who are in need of assistance. Every effort is made within the limitations of the financial structure of the institution to help students who by reason of unforeseen circumstances get into money difficulties. A special committee considers each case on its individual merits. A student having indebtedness to the Medical College in other ways than formal loans is ineligible for graduation.

ALPHA OMEGA ALPHA

Alpha Omega Alpha is a nonsecret Medical College Honor Society, membership in which is based upon scholarship, moral qualifications being satisfactory. It was organized at the College of Medicine of the University of Illinois, Chicago, August 25, 1902. A.O.A. is the only order of its kind on this continent.

Elections are made from students who have fully completed 2 years of a four-year curriculum, by unanimous vote of the active members acting on recommendations made by Faculty advisers. Not more than one-sixth of any class may be elected. Aspects of and indispensable to true scholarship are included open-mindedness, individuality, originality, demonstration of studious attitude, and promise of intellectual growth.

The Cornell Chapter of A.O.A. was organized May 2, 1910. A large number of the Faculty are members. The Chapter sponsors an annual open lecture delivered in the Medical College Auditorium on a cultural or historical phase of medicine.

The members elected from the graduating class of 1951 are the following:

Stanley Birnbaum
George H. Carman
Esther M. Fincher
Frederic F. Flach
Jack M. Gershberg
William H. Jeffreys

Alfred W. Kopf
Roger P. Lochhead
Thomas A. McGraw
Kenneth Roth
Paul R. vom Eigen
Carl Wierum

SIGMA XI

Sigma Xi, a national honorary society devoted to the encouragement of scientific research, was founded at Cornell University at Ithaca in 1886. An active branch of the Cornell Chapter is maintained at the Medical College. Many members of the Faculty and research staff are members of Sigma Xi and share in the activities of the Cornell Chapter. Medical students are eligible for election to membership in Sigma Xi on the basis of proved ability to carry on original medical research and on nomination by active members of the Cornell Chapter. As part of its program for the encouragement of medical research, the Cornell Chapter sponsors an annual lecture to the staff and student body by an outstanding investigator in the field of medical science.

Each graduate of Cornell University Medical College is automatically considered a member of the Alumni Association, and the dues are $5 a year. The activities of the Association include a quarterly publication, an annual banquet, student and faculty parties, student loan funds, and an employment bureau. The Association maintains an office at 1300 York Avenue.

A scholarship is available each year to a student recommended by the College, and an annual appeal for funds for the use of the Medical College is made to members of the Association.

Educational Policies and Plan of Instruction

The Medical College is divided into thirteen major departments, six of which are primarily concerned with the sciences underlying clinical medicine. They are anatomy, biochemistry, physiology, bacteriology and immunology, pathology, and pharmacology. Seven departments have as their major functions the study, treatment, and prevention of human diseases, and maternity care. These are medicine, surgery, pediatrics, psychiatry, obstetrics and gynecology, public health, and preventive medicine.

The heads of these major departments, together with the President of the University and the Dean, constitute the Executive Faculty, which is responsible for the educational policies of the College.

Courses required to be completed by each student before the degree of Doctor of Medicine is conferred by Cornell University are offered by each department. These courses are arranged, in their sequence and duration, to develop logically the knowledge and training of students and to build up gradually the requirements needed for graduation as Doctor of Medicine. The various departments also offer courses and opportunities for special study open to regular medical students, to candidates for advanced degrees in the Graduate School of Cornell University, and to qualified advanced students of medicine not candidates for degrees.

Medical knowledge is so extensive that only a small part of that needed for a successful career in medicine can be acquired during the time devoted to medical study by the medical college curriculum. The time devoted by the prospective physician to his preparation for the practice of medicine includes at least one and often many more years of graduate medical education as intern or resident of a hospital, either in clinical or laboratory work or both. The required period of study at Cornell University Medical College extends over four academic years of at least thirty-three weeks each. It is planned that studies may be pursued during vacation periods. This will provide an opportunity to shorten the time necessary to complete all required courses and allow more time for elective work. Study in other medical schools may also be arranged during the course if opportunities can be found.

As medical science and medical practice may be pursued in a variety of ways, it is the policy of the College to encourage the student to vary his course of study according to his special interests and particular talents as far as is consistent with meeting the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

A thesis is not required for the degree of Doctor of Medicine, but students are encouraged to engage in individual work as far as their time permits, with the hope that they may accomplish results worthy of publication. It is desirable therefore for some students to devote all their free time to a single subject in which they have a special interest.

The development of technical and scientific proficiency in the various special fields of clinical medicine is not encouraged during the regular medical course but must await adequate training after graduation.

The first year of study is devoted to anatomy, biochemistry, physiology, bacteriology, and psychobiology.

In the second year, the subjects of physiology and bacteriology are completed, and the student takes up work in parasitology, pathology, pharmacology, physical diagnosis, psychiatry, neurology, clinical pathology, public health, ophthalmology, radiology, and surgery.

During the third and fourth years, students are divided into small groups for practical work in the various clinics and for elective work. The third year class meets at noon each day for clinical lectures and demonstrations.

Time for elective work is provided in the fourth year, after students have had opportunities to acquire some knowledge of the medical sciences and of clinical medicine. Students are advised to consult informally members of the Faculty in regard to the use of their time for elective work. It is deemed best not to establish a formal advisory system.

It is anticipated that, beginning in 1952, the fourth year will be increased to 45 weeks.

The Faculty expressly reserves the right to make alterations in the curriculum whenever advisable and without previous notice to students.

EMBRYOLOGY AND HISTOLOGY . . . The work in embryology presupposes a general knowledge of the subject, particularly that of the early development of the chick. It embraces a thorough study of the development of the mammalian embryo in the light of our knowledge of the evolution of the human body. Malformations resulting from developmental disturbances are broadly considered. The course is closely correlated with that of gross anatomy.

The work in histology includes the histogenesis and microscopic structures of all organs of the human body with the exception of the central nervous system (see Neuro-anatomy). Emphasis is laid on relation of structure to function.

The tissues are studied principally by means of stained sections and practice is given in rapid identification of their diagnostic features. Demonstrations of living material are made, and opportunities are offered for acquiring the essentials of histological technique.

Laboratory and lectures, 180 hours, first and second terms. Required of all first year students.

NEURO-ANATOMY . . . A laboratory course on the gross and microscopic anatomy of the human nervous system. Special emphasis is laid on the more important pathways and their functions.

Laboratory and demonstrations, 84 hours. Required of all first year students during the second term.

GROSS ANATOMY OF THE HUMAN BODY . . . This is taught by means of laboratory exercises and dissections. The required work includes: (a) dissection of the part; (b) demonstrations, study, and discussion upon dissected and prepared specimens.

Total laboratory hours, 374. First and second terms of the first year. Required of all first year students.

ELECTIVE COURSES . . . Subject to the approval of the department of anatomy, its equipment is available to medical students wishing to pursue advanced work or research in anatomical subjects. Members of the staff will direct the progress of such undertakings. Schedules to fit individual cases will be arranged for a limited number of third and fourth year students who may devote the major part or all of their elective time in this department. Such elective time may be devoted to one of the following: (1) a review of dissection; (2) dissection of a foetus; (3) microscopic anatomy; (4) embryology; (5) special research problems.

COURSES OPEN TO SPECIAL STUDENTS

GROSS ANATOMY . . . A limited number of graduates in medicine will be provided with material for dissection of the human body. Fee, $50 for a term of ten weeks; or for entire dissection, $100.

COURSE IN SURGICAL ANATOMY . . . This course consists of an extensive review of surgical anatomy with demonstrations and dissections. It is specially designed for candidates for the American Board of Surgery and is in charge of Dr. Ernest W. Lampe. The fee for the course, which includes matriculation, registration charges, and tuition, is $200, and the course will be for a period of four weeks. The size of the class is limited to 25 persons. Inquiries may be directed to Office of the Dean, Cornell University Medical College, 1300 York Avenue, New York 21, N.Y.

COURSE IN CYTOLOGIC DIAGNOSIS OF CANCER . . . This course consists of training in the technique and interpretation of smears prepared from various body fluids, with discussions and laboratory work. It is designed for qualified physicians and laboratory workers. The teaching is done by Dr. George N. Papanicolaou and associates. The fee for the course, including tuition, matriculation, and administration charges, is $300. Two courses of three months each will be given this year, beginning in September and in March. The size of the classes is limited to 15 persons. Inquiries may be directed to Dr. John F. Seybolt, Cornell University Medical College, 1300 York Avenue, New York 21, N.Y.

ANATOMICAL RESEARCH . . . Subject to special arrangement with the head of the department.

BACTERIOLOGY AND IMMUNOLOGY

JAMES M. NEILL, Professor of Bacteriology and Immunology.

EDWARD J. HEHRE, Associate Professor of Bacteriology and Immunology.

JOHN Y. SUGG, Associate Professor of Bacteriology and Immunology.

_____, Instructor in Bacteriology and Immunology.

The course is given in the third term of the first year and in the first term of the second year. Emphasis is placed upon the aspects of microbiology and immunology that are pertinent to an understanding of the infectious diseases.

FIRST YEAR . . . The laboratory work includes a survey of representative morphological groups of pathogenic bacteria, a study of the microbial flora of the upper respiratory and lower intestinal tracts of healthy persons, and experiments on the mechanisms involved in antigen-antibody reactions. The lectures are directed toward the establishment of general concepts, particularly the principles involved in microbial growth, the principles underlying active immunization, and the factors that enter into host-parasite relationships.

Lectures and laboratory: 55 hours.

SECOND YEAR . . . In this term a more intensive study is made of the agents of specific infections, including fungi, spirochetes, rickettsiae, and viruses, as well as bacteria. General concepts introduced in the first term are further developed by applying them to the specific diseases. Laboratory work with material from patients is included, not only to acquaint the student with the technical procedures, but to illustrate the application of fundamental principles to practical methods. The action of chemotherapeutic agents, especially those of microbial origin, are considered.

Lectures, laboratory, and conference: 88 hours.

ELECTIVE COURSES . . . The department will arrange a schedule of work for fourth year students who wish to devote their elective time to microbiology and immunology.

The object is to impart that fundamental knowledge of biochemistry which is necessary to the comprehension of the bearings of chemistry upon medicine.

The schedule during the first and second terms is devoted to an intensive course in general biochemistry by means of lectures, demonstrations, and conferences. During the third term the instruction is centered largely in the laboratory and the conference room where the knowledge gained in the first two terms is consolidated and amplified. Considerable emphasis is laid upon quantitative rather than qualitative laboratory procedures. Throughout these lectures the application of biochemistry to the study of disease and metabolic disturbances is stressed. Collateral reading in biochemical literature is encouraged.

Students begin their course in medicine in the second term of the second year with physical diagnosis under Dr. Stewart. They are introduced to this subject in the second term (two afternoons a week) by means of lectures, demonstrations, and practical work on normal subjects and patients. In the third term they spend two mornings a week with the patients either in the pavilions of New York Hospital or on the wards of Bellevue, Memorial Hospital, or Lincoln Hospital.

An introductory course in neurologic diagnostic methods is given under the direction of Dr. Wolff in the third term of the second year. The work consists of demonstrations and intensive training in the discipline of neurological examination. The students in groups of three are assigned to an instructor on the neurology service at Bellevue Hospital. This work coincides in time with the other training in physical diagnosis.

An introductory required course in clinical pathology is given in the third term of the second year, under the direction of Dr. Kellner. It consists of lectures and laboratory work. Among the topics discussed are the theory, practice, and application of methods for the examination of urine, blood, sputum, exudates, transudates, spinal fluid, gastric contents, and feces. The methods studied include chemical, morphological, serological, and animal inoculation methods which are of value as diagnostic procedures. Discussion of the clinical significance of findings is included. In addition, certain allergic phenomena are presented in lecture and demonstration and their clinical relationship discussed.

In each of the terms of the third year, one third of the class act as clinical clerks in medicine in the pavilions of the New York Hospital. The medical wards of the New York Hospital under the supervision of Dr. Barr comprise five public pavilions totaling 142 beds. The service includes patients with diseases of the nervous system and of the skin.

These are under the care of subdepartments which are organized for teaching and clinical research as well as the management of patients. They are, therefore, analogous to independent departments of dermatology and neurology as seen in other hospitals. An active pulmonary service is functioning in close cooperation with the surgical service and pediatric service. Beds on the fourth floor are used for the study and treatment of infectious diseases, including tuberculosis, the exanthemata, and syphilis. The syphilis service (Medicine L) is organized for the study of all phases of the disease as well as for its epidemiological control. There is close cooperation with the department of psychiatry in the study of the neuroses and early manifestations of psychoses found in the wards and dispensary.

The third year clinical clerkship at the New York Hospital is under the direction of Drs. Barr, Wolff, and Grace. The backbone of the student's training as a clinical clerk is believed to be his own experience with patients as amplified by reading and by contact with members of the hospital and teaching staff. He is given as much responsibility as is practical, namely, the recording, in the hospital records, of his own histories and laboratory examinations. These, together with his physical examinations, are supervised by tutors, each of whom has responsibility for the supervision of a small group of students. Additional teaching consists of rounds with the visiting and house staff and more formal conferences once a week in which the clerks present cases for criticism and discussion. In these it is attempted to cover the more important fields of internal medicine. The work of the clerkships is supplemented by frequent clinical conferences which are held throughout the academic year. During the third clinical clerkship the students receive further training in the evaluation of signs and symptoms of disease of the nervous system. Twice a week the clinical clerks discuss the personality and psychiatric problems of their patients with a member of the department of psychiatry. Two teaching visits a week at the New York Hospital are dedicated to neurological problems. This work supplements that of the second year by placing special emphasis upon etiology and therapeusis in diseases of the nervous system.

The senior students are divided into five groups, each of which devotes one term of the college year to general medicine and the medical specialties. Under the supervision of Dr. George Reader and other members of the medical staff, they spend two months in the out-patient department of the New York Hospital, where they are assigned in small groups to sections in general medicine and clinics devoted to dermatology and some of the other medical specialties. Other special departments of the clinic such as physiotherapy and dietotherapy provide demonstrations to the fourth year clerks. The practical work with the patients is supplemented by seminars, clinics, lectures, demonstrations, and weekly presentations of subjects by the students themselves.

During the fourth year clinical clerkship in medicine, students for a period of 18 hours are brought by Dr. Wolff and his staff in contact with ambulatory patients suffering from diseases of the nervous system. Further opportunity to gain proficiency in the diagnosis of diseases of the nervous system is afforded. Special emphasis is placed upon the home management of patients with neurologic defects.

Clinical-pathological conferences organized by the department of pathology in conjunction with the clinical departments occur weekly throughout the year.

In addition, the private service consists of a total of 74 beds. Students are given practical instruction in the out-patient department clinics of both obstetrics and gynecology and in the various special clinics operated for the more intensive study and care of patients with unusual problems. The students are given every opportunity to benefit from the clinical work as carried on and demonstrated on the wards and in the operating and delivery rooms.

There are approximately 5,000 admissions to the obstetrical service and about 2,000 to the gynecological service each year.

THIRD YEAR

COURSE I. THE THEORY AND PRINCIPLES OF OBSTETRICS AND GYNECOLOGY . . . The content of this course consists of lectures and demonstrations covering the anatomy and physiology of the female reproductive system; the physiology and pathology of pregnancy, labor, and puerperium; and the etiology, pathology, and diagnosis of the diseases of the pelvic structures.

The entire class meets for these sessions on Tuesdays and Saturdays 12-1 p.m. throughout the year. Professors Douglas, Javert, Finn, Johnson, McLane, and Staff. Total hours, 66.

COURSE II. PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION . . . This work is given to one sixth of the class for periods of one half of a trimester (5½ weeks) on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 to 11 a.m. The course deals especially with abdominal palpation, pelvic examination, and manikin exercises. Professors Douglas, Dennen, Johnson, and Staff.

COURSE III. SEMINAR . . . Tuesdays and Thursdays 11-12 a.m. Professor Douglas and Staff.

COURSE IV. PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION . . . This course comprises instruction in obstetrical and gynecological bacteriology and pathology. Mondays 9-12 a.m. for one trimester. Professors Douglas, Javert, Finn, and Staff. Total hours, 66 for Courses II, III, and IV.

FOURTH YEAR

MAJOR PRACTICAL OBSTETRICS AND GYNECOLOGY . . . This course comprises practical work in obstetrics and gynecology and is the sequel to the theoretical instruction offered to the third year students. Each student will live in the Lying-In Hospital for a period of two months, during which time he will act as a clinical assistant in the obstetrical and gynecological departments, hospital wards, delivery and operating rooms, and clinics. He will be provided with sleeping accommodations but not with board.

The practical work includes the prenatal care of many patients, attending them in labor and delivery as well as following them throughout the course of the puerperium. Facilities are also provided for the student to examine gynecological patients and to follow these patients through diagnostic and therapeutic procedures.

Because of the nature of the service, night work is required. Minimum hours allotted to the course, 264.

ELECTIVE COURSES

PRACTICAL OBSTETRICS AND GYNECOLOGY . . . A certain number of students will be accepted to serve as assistants in the clinic.

Courses can be arranged in the chemical, bacteriological, and pathological laboratories for the study of specific research problems. The special clinics provide teaching facilities for clinical investigation in carcinoma, endocrinology, heart disease, X-ray pelvimetry, infertility, and other allied sciences. The various rounds and staff conferences can be attended.

Encouragement is given original work according to the departmental facilities and the student's capabilities and in general will be designed to meet the student's qualifications.

GENERAL PATHOLOGY

FACILITIES . . . The department of pathology occupies three floors of the central part of the College building, conveniently located above the library and in immediate contact with the Hospital, the autopsy room being in the connecting wing between College and Hospital. The teaching is largely concentrated on the third floor, where the autopsy room, demonstration room for pathological anatomy, anatomical museum, and classrooms are found. The fourth and fifth floors are chiefly unit laboratories for staff members and graduate students and for technical preparation. In addition, animal quarters and facilities for experimental work are on the fifth, sixth, and seventh floors.

The museum contains a carefully selected collection of specimens, representing most of the common and many of the more unusual pathological lesions. It is especially rich in lesions of bones and in tumors. In addition to this mounted collection, there is available a very considerable amount of constantly changing gross material for student study.

The postmortem service of the New York Hospital affords abundant opportunity for study of pathological anatomy and its relation to clinical medicine. The systematic records of autopsies performed at the New York Hospital have been preserved since 1851, and in recent years protocols and microscopic slides have been carefully indexed and filed.

INSTRUCTION . . . The course of instruction is given in the second and third terms of the second year. Gross and histological lesions are studied and their pathogenesis and correlation with disturbed function is considered. Lectures and classroom demonstrations are supplemented by studies at the autopsy table. The course begins with the degenerations, inflammation, and repair, and proceeds with the various specific infections and tumors. The latter part of the course is devoted to special systematic pathology including an introduction to neuropathology.

GENERAL AND SPECIAL PATHOLOGY . . . Required in the second and third terms of the second year.

Professors Kidd, Pearce, Olcott, and Staff. 275 hours.

NEUROPATHOLOGY . . . The pathology of the nervous system is studied and altered structure and function correlated. Professor Stevenson. 33 hours.

CLINICAL PATHOLOGICAL CONFERENCES . . . These conferences are held in cooperation with the staffs of the clinical departments of the Hospital and Medical College each week throughout the year. Observations concerning the clinical course and diagnosis of diseases are correlated with changes found at autopsy.

ELECTIVE COURSES

A student may undertake the investigation of some problem in pathology or may pursue advanced courses in any of several fields, to be determined by consultation with the head of the department. Research or elective courses will ordinarily require the entire time of the student for a period of one to three months, and may be continued into the summer.

A clinical lecture once a week throughout the entire school year presents the subjects of normal growth and development in infants and children, principles of nutrition with their application to infant feeding, and patients illustrating the peculiarities of disease in early life. Students serve as clinical clerks in pediatrics for a period of five and one-half weeks on the pavilions of the New York Hospital. They are assigned new cases in rotation and gain experience in the management of sick children requiring hospital residence. They are on duty in rotation at night and weekends. The work of the clinical clerkship includes attendance at well-baby and prophylactic clinics, rounds, and seminars. Instruction in contagious diseases is given at the Willard Parker Hospital. Total hours, 165.

FOURTH YEAR . . . The clinical lectures are continued through part of the fourth year. Students are assigned to the out-patient department in the mornings where they are given, under supervision, responsibility for the management of ambulatory pediatric patients. They take histories, make physical examinations, and prescribe treatment. A daily therapeutic conference supplements the clinical work. A series of seminars for case presentation will be held under the supervision of senior staff members. An effort is made to bring back to the out-patient department certain patients seen by the students in their third year for follow-up during their fourth year term in pediatrics. Emphasis is placed on the handling of psychosomatic problems and on the measures which can be taken to promote proper growth and development. Total hours, 51.

ELECTIVE COURSES

It is intended to fill a gap between experimental pharmacology and the clinical use of drugs, and it deals with substances the pharmacological action of which can best be demonstrated on clinical material. This course includes practice in prescription writing. Emphasis is placed on evidence bearing directly on the human subject in health and diseases. 22 hours.

ELECTIVE COURSES

The department of psychiatry offers instruction during each of the four years. The understanding of growth and development of the normal personality forms a necessary basis for future clinical training. A course in psychopathology in the second year orients the student in personality disorders and in the methods of their examination and study. In the third year, this preliminary training is utilized in the study of patients at the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic and on the pavilions of the New York Hospital. In the psychiatric out-patient department, during the fourth year, he participates in the study and treatment of the diverse problems presenting themselves in general psychiatric practice. The importance of personality problems in general medicine is taught in the pavilions of the New York Hospital and in the out-patient service of the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic. Clinics are planned to unify these many activities and to offer in addition a broad understanding of treatment and investigation.

FIRST YEAR: PERSONALITY GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT

... This course acquaints the student with the growth and development and methods of study of the normal personality. Lectures, seminars, and selected films are utilized in presenting a dynamic orientation to the formation of the adult personality from infancy through senescence. The significance of interpersonal relations is stressed, with particular emphasis on the patient-physician relationship. Psychological, physiological, and sociological factors are considered. Total hours, 22.

SECOND YEAR: PSYCHOPATHOLOGY AND METHODS OF EXAMINATION . . .

The outstanding psychopathological phenomena are demonstrated and their psychodynamics studied by the students on patients in the out-patient department of the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic and at the Manhattan State Hospital. This course offers practical experience in interviewing and history-taking and in the methods of psychiatric examination. Total hours, 33.

THIRD YEAR: CLINICAL PSYCHIATRY . . . In the in-patient department of the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic various psychiatric illnesses are presented; in the medical and surgical pavilions of the New York Hospital, patients are studied in whom psychological and psychopathological factors are important. Total hours, 33.

FOURTH YEAR: CLINICAL PSYCHIATRY . . . In this course in the out-patient department of the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic, the student carries out the treatment of individual patients. This course offers an opportunity to learn psychotherapy under close supervision and to understand the role of psychiatric social service and of psychological studies in the adjustment of these patients. Clinics with case presentation, with emphasis on psychiatric treatment and review of literature, are given on Monday from 12 to 1 o'clock. A series of lectures deals with the psychopathology of childhood and the management of related difficulties. Total hours, 81.

ELECTIVE WORK

Opportunities for elective work are provided in the out-patient department and in the laboratories of the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic, and at the Westchester Division of the New York Hospital, White Plains, N. Y.

SECOND YEAR: PARASITOLOGY . . . This course is assigned to the department of public health and preventive medicine because the major interests of several members of the staff lie in the field of tropical medicine. Furthermore, the preventive aspects of diseases that are produced by parasites are of paramount importance in the control of these infections.

The course is given each Thursday afternoon during the first trimester of the second year. The lectures are given from 2 to 3 and the laboratory work from 3 to 5 p.m.

The important parasites of man are considered: the mode of transmission of each parasite is studied, as well as the life cycle and intermediate hosts. Particular emphasis is placed on the clinical aspects of the various diseases that may be produced by the parasites. Prevention and control of human parasitic diseases are given proper consideration, and the therapy of these conditions is discussed carefully.

* On leave of absence.

An abundance of material is used for demonstration purposes. Many of the parasites are studied in living stages. Clinical cases of the various diseases under study are presented from the hospital wards, out-patient clinics, and elsewhere, whenever suitable material is available. Total hours, 33.

SECOND YEAR: PUBLIC HEALTH . . . The course in public health begins in the second term of the second year. It is an introductory course in environmental sanitation, industrial hygiene, vital statistics, and the principles of public health. The students are assigned to this work every Monday afternoon for approximately 11 exercises. Laboratory assignments and field exercises make up the major part of the work. The essential material covered in this term relates to community health protection, including the control of water supplies, sewage disposal, and the sanitation of food. Housing is studied in relation to its various social and hygienic aspects, as well as air-borne infection and the problems of industrial hygiene. Four afternoons are devoted to vital statistics, including a consideration of the methods of statistical analysis and interpretation; three afternoons are devoted to health promotion of the industrial worker. Field visits are made, usually in small groups, to demonstrate industrial sanitation, housing, the New York City Health Department's diagnostic laboratory service, and other pertinent matters. Total hours, 33.

THIRD YEAR: PREVENTIVE MEDICINE . . . Students are divided into small groups of about twelve each. These student are assigned to the department of preventive medicine every Friday all day for a five to six week period. The sections are subdivided into groups of about four students. These groups are then assigned to section work in the various activities of the Kips Bay-Yorkville Health Center. In addition, the students are given a full day's session with the Department of Workmen's Compensation and one half-day session at the Strang Cancer Prevention Clinic at Memorial Hospital. Each Friday at noon throughout the year the whole class assembles for a lecture or discussion. The subject matter of these exercises has, for the most part, been prepared by and is presented by the students themselves. Total lectures and discussions, 33 hours; total section work, 33 hours.

COMMUNITY STUDY . . . Each student is requested to prepare a report of a community of his own choice, giving in detail the facilities provided by the community for care of illness and protection of community health. This report includes not only the activities of the community health and welfare departments, but also the hospital facilities, medical, nursing, and dental personnel, and all other phases of community activities that aid in providing a comprehensive system of adequate medical care.

FAMILY HEALTH ADVISERS . . . Approximately one third of the class select an assignment which is in lieu of the community study. These students are called "Family Health Advisers". Each of these students is assigned to a family from the clientele of The New York Hospital and, under careful guidance, he becomes a confidential adviser to the family on health matters during a period of two years.

FOURTH YEAR: CLINICAL EXERCISES IN PREVENTIVE MEDICINE . . . Each Wednesday afternoon the fourth year class meets for one hour, 3 to 4 p.m., throughout the year. This hour is divided between Medicine, Preventive Medicine and Pediatrics with some overlapping presentations. The conferences in Preventive Medicine consist of clinical exercises which demonstrate the means by which physicians can incorporate the principles of preventive medicine in clinical practice. Total hours, 11.

ELECTIVE COURSES

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE . . . An elective course is offered to students in the fourth year. Not more than four students will be accepted for any one period. Students will be assigned to the Kips Bay-Yorkville District Health Center and will participate in the various clinical and research activities of the Center.

MEDICAL PARASITOLOGY . . . This course is intended to supplement and extend the required work in this field. Diagnosis, life histories of parasites and their vectors, and control measures are considered with special reference to tropical medicine.

The department has been the recipient of the Marcelle Fleischmann Memorial Fund for the study of immunologic and allergic phenomena in tropical diseases. Third or fourth year students may associate themselves with one of the several research projects being carried out under this grant.

The teaching of radiology is conducted by didactic lectures, by section work with smaller groups in connection with clinical clerkships, and by presentation of the X-ray aspects of various cases at the regular conferences of the clinical departments. Moreover, elective courses given in the fourth year play an important part in supplementing these methods. A large film and lantern slide museum of cases carefully selected for their teaching value has been prepared. This is constantly added to from the abundant material passing through the department. Three floors of the L Building are assigned to X-ray work. In addition, equipment for special examinations is located in the Woman's Clinic, Urology, Psychiatry, and elsewhere in the Medical College and Hospital.

During the first year, in collaboration with the Department of Anatomy, anatomical structures are visualized by radiographic and roentgenoscopic methods.

The didactic work consists of a series of eleven lectures to the entire second year class. These include the fundamental principles of radiation physics, X-ray diagnosis, X-ray and radium therapy, with the aim of making the student aware at this stage of the various uses of X-rays. The indications and limitations are stressed.

Section work is conducted in the third year, while the students are serving as clinical clerks. The Departments of Medicine, Pediatrics, and Surgery assign each group receiving instruction from them to the Department of Radiology for regularly scheduled informal sessions. Specifically related X-ray material is presented and correlated with the clinical and laboratory findings. These sessions total approximately thirty hours.

ELECTIVES

Fourth Year:

(1) X-ray Clinical Clerkships. A limited number of students are accepted to observe, and assist where possible, in the routine activities of the department. The routine includes film interpretations, fluoroscopy, therapeutic irradiation, and attendance at radiology conferences. Two conferences are held daily (L-611) at which time the more interesting diagnostic and therapeutic problems are discussed. One conference is held from 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. The second session, from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., is limited to a review of the current examinations of the gastrointestinal tract.

(2) Angiocardiography and Cardiac Catheterization. Individual instruction available for interested students.

GENERAL SURGERY

SECOND YEAR . . . During the third term of the second year, two hours a week will be devoted to history taking and examination of surgical patients. Total hours, 22.

THIRD YEAR . . . In the third year, students will spend the entire time for one term in the out-patient department, both for general surgery and the surgical specialties. During this time they will gain experience in history taking, physical examination, diagnostic work-up, and care of out-patients. Here, the students come in contact with patients exhibiting a wide variety of surgical conditions.

During this term, for four morning and four afternoon sessions in the diagnostic clinic of general surgery and also in the minor surgery clinic, students will work on patients, make a differential diagnosis and formulate treatment in conference with a senior instructor. One lecture each week is devoted to fractures, and in addition, each student spends one afternoon a week in the fracture clinic. During the week, three conferences with the entire group and a senior instructor are held, at which time selected topics are presented and discussed. A course in operative surgery on animals, designed to emphasize the fundamental principles of surgery will occupy one morning each week.

A surgical clinic is held at the noon hour for students of the third year, throughout the year. A weekly clinic pathological conference is held, attended by both the third and fourth year students. Time, 330 hours.

FOURTH YEAR . . . During the time assigned to surgery in the fourth year, the students spend their entire time on the surgical pavilions as clinical clerks. This allows the opportunity of following each patient to the X-ray Department and to the operating room and also of following specimens in Surgical Pathology. In conjunction with this, a surgical symposium is held each week, at which time recent advances in surgery are discussed. An X-ray conference and a tumor conference, as well as a conference in surgical pathology is given weekly, in order to correlate all findings in regard to individual patients. One hour each day is devoted to a conference in general surgery or one of the specialties including neurosurgery, chest surgery, and plastic surgery. Both the third and fourth year classes attend the grand surgical rounds each week. Time, 264 hours.

OPHTHALMOLOGY . . . During the third term of the second year, the entire class receives instruction in microscopy of the eye including the pathology of such important diseases as uveitis, glaucoma, intraocular tumors, tuberculosis, injuries, and sympathetic ophthalmia. Introduction to special diagnosis, techniques, and particularly use of the ophthalmoscope, is given at this time. Total hours, 22.

In the term of the third year assigned to surgery, a series of lectures and clinical demonstrations is held one afternoon a week in which the commoner eye conditions encountered in the out-patient department and on the wards are covered. At the same time each student spends a limited period of time in the Ophthalmological Clinic.

In the term of the fourth year assigned to surgery, the students are rotated in small groups through the out-patient department for examination, diagnosis, and treatment of patients under supervision. This is supplemented by conferences and ward rounds.

ORTHOPEDIC SURGERY . . . During each trimester in surgery of the third year, there is one lecture a week in orthopedic surgery which serves as an introduction to the clinical work in the surgical wards. Students work in the orthopedic out-patient clinic during the entire period of 11 weeks.

In the fourth year a limited number of students serve as clinical clerks on the orthopedic pavilion.

OTOLARYNGOLOGY . . . In the surgical term of the third year, formal clinical lectures are given. The anatomy of the head is reviewed, and instruction in the examination of the ear, nose, and throat is given.

The subjects of bronchoscopy and rhinoplasty are discussed. Students spend one afternoon each week in the otolaryngological out-patient department and have the opportunity to study cases on the pavilions as well. During this period, special topics are presented to the section by various members of the teaching staff.

Opportunity is offered during the elective term of the fourth year to spend additional time on this subject.

UROLOGY . . . The teaching of urology is carried out by means of lectures and clinics during the surgical term of the third year, at which time patients suffering from a wide variety of urological conditions are presented. The teaching is supplemented by experience in the urological wards and out-patient department.

MILITARY MEDICINE

DONALD G. W. BROOKING, Professor of Military Science and Tactics.

This is an elective course currently offered in seventy-seven medical schools throughout the country under the joint auspices of the U. S. Army and the U. S. Air Force. It is a progressive course extending through the four years and consisting of a one hour period each week and, in addition, one six weeks' summer training camp. Upon graduation from medical college each student who completes the course in Military Medicine is commissioned a First Lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Army Reserve or the U. S. Air Force Reserve. (Except in time of national emergency Reserve Officers are called to active duty only with their own consent.)

Any male citizen who meets the physical and other requirements for commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps is eligible for enrollment in the course, and all other medical students are welcome to sit in on classes. Those who have reserve commissions in the Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard may not be enrolled in the Advanced Course, which begins in the junior year, without first resigning such commissions.

There are no financial considerations involved in the Basic Course extending through the freshman and sophomore years, but during the Advanced Course each student is paid a commutation of subsistence amounting to approximately $260 a year in addition to the pay he receives while in attendance at the summer camp and travel allowances to camp and return. Uniforms are worn only during the period of the Medical ROTC camp.

Military Medicine is essentially preventive medicine, and the course is designed to supplement the regular medical curriculum by providing such training as would enable the young physician to take his place and function efficiently in the armed forces without additional time-consuming preliminary training, or to assume a position of medical leadership in a civilian catastrophe situation and the planning and organization in anticipation thereof. During the Basic Course the organization of the Army and the Air Force and their Medical Services, and the tactical employment of the components thereof are explained. The fundamentals of military law and administration are taught together with map reading, emergency care, and evacuation of the wounded.

During the Advanced Course while orthodox clinical medicine, surgery, and psychiatry are being learned in the regular curriculum, Military Medicine presents the modifications necessitated by the catastrophe situation. Preventive medicine in its many practical military applications receives the greatest attention, while additional subjects include field medicine and surgery, military psychiatry, the medical aspects of atomic, chemical, and biological warfare, and military medical research and developments.

The principles of military medicine are the same principles that govern the successful management of civilian catastrophe situations, so in this atomic era it is urged that all medical students avail themselves of the increased preparedness afforded by the medical ROTC program.

The Graduate School

The Graduate Faculty of the Medical College at present consists of professors in the preclinical branches of medicine who accept properly qualified students as candidates for the higher academic degrees. The qualifications required of graduate students are in every particular those which are required of students in other divisions of the University. Students desiring to enter the Graduate School for work in the medical sciences must direct their applications to: The Graduate School, Cornell University Medical College, 1300 York Avenue, New York 21, N.Y. The present faculty representative, Professor C. V. Morrill, may be consulted at any time for further information. Because of limitations in space, only a few students can be accommodated in each department. A personal interview is required of all applicants before the filing of forms. For a description of the work in the Medical College in New York City, consult other sections of this Announcement.

To be admitted to the Graduate School, an applicant (1) must have received his baccalaureate degree from a college or university of recognized standing, or have done work equivalent to that required for such degree; (2) as judged by his previous scholastic record, or otherwise, must show promise of ability satisfactorily to pursue advanced study and research; and (3) must have had adequate previous preparation in his chosen field of study to enter at once upon graduate study in that field. An applicant who is not a graduate of Cornell University must submit complete official transcripts of all previous college studies.

Students may be admitted to the Graduate School at the Medical College in one of the following two classes: (1) candidates for degrees; (2) graduate students not candidates for degrees ("non-candidates").
